

Microprocessor Chip Mask

When used with UV light, masks create the various circuit patterns on each layer of the microprocessor. A lens (middle) reduces the mask's image. So what gets printed on the wafer is typically four times smaller linearly than the mask's pattern.

